WHY THIS TRAINING MATTERS

As populations age and pension systems face sustainability challenges, Islamic Pension Funds are emerging as a critical ethical and Shariah-compliant alternative to conventional retirement solutions. With growing demand from Muslim and ethically driven investors, financial institutions and regulators must understand how to structure, regulate, and manage pension funds that comply with Shariah while meeting long-term retirement objectives. This training addresses the structural, regulatory, investment, and risk management aspects of Islamic pension funds, equipping participants with practical insights to design and oversee sustainable retirement solutions.

ABOUT ISLAMIC PENSION FUNDS

Islamic Pension Funds are a growing segment of the global Islamic finance industry, offering Shariah-compliant, ethical, and risk-sharing retirement solutions. These funds operate in line with Islamic principles by avoiding interest-based instruments and investing in permissible asset classes such as Sukuk, equities, and real assets. As Islamic finance assets continue to expand globally, Islamic pension funds are gaining attention from regulators, employers, and asset managers seeking long-term, socially responsible retirement structures aligned with faith-based and ethical investment values.
